Shahab Nedaei, born 1988 in Tehran, is an Vienna-based digital artist. His work is rooted in the simultaneous and synonymous equality of information - the internet. Forced to seek refuge in Austria in his young years, the virtual space served as a sanctuary in which his life mainly took place, becoming chosen culture. Throughout his studies of Digital Arts at the University for Applied Arts in Vienna, he experimented with the synergies of multiple digital media forms and the interspace resulting from the coalesce of cultures and social paradigmas, which emerge from the world wide web. This state of mind also reflects in his current practice. His concepts include ambiguous approaches, leaving heterogeneous spaces for deeper individual understanding that create new perspectives on known matter, media and technology. With each new project he confronts new technological, conceptual and philosophical hurdles, dissolving boundaries and nurturing a vast growing multitude of perspective angles.
